A player faces the prospect of working overtime for nothing with about the same spirit of eagerness that a condemned man faces the electric chair. Baseball games these days are above suspicion. The spirit of winning is altogether too strong in each individual ball tosser's breast.

E. E. Helm, one of Washington's most enthusiastic baseball fans, returned yesterday from Pittsburg and talked enter-tainingly of the first two games played in that city. Mr. Heim declares that Detroit will win out, asserting that the Tigers have the best pitchers and every man on the team is hitting the ball hard. Regarding the first game, in which Babe Adams scored a victory for the Pirates, Mr. Helm states emphatically that, in his estimation, young Mr. Adams had a Ward........ 183 190 191 O'Donnell..... 179 194 179 horseshoe concealed somewhere about his Totals..... 827 933 933 Totals..... 910 870 833 person. The Washington Herald is giving splendid bulletin and megaphone service on the series, as the large crowd which ! gathers in front of the office, will attest. A direct wire from the grounds to the operator in the building gives every detail, and "the original megaphone man" announces not only every play, but every move, balls, strikes, &c. A full box score is in process of compilation as the game progresses, and when the last man is out the figures are up, and the box complete in every detail.

Little Owen Bush, former Indianapolis star shortstop, is making a remarkable record in the world series. He is more than holding his own with the peerless

Ty Cobb, realizing his cleverness and importance, has intimated to the officials of the Detroit club that he will demand a $10,000 salary for next season. Cobb is just as big a drawing card for the Tigers as Honus Wagner is for the Pirates. The latter receives $10,000 per season, and Cobb recently declared he is worth just as much money to Detroit as Wagner is to
